To love our neighbor as ourselves is the natural result of our loving devotion toward God. First John 3:17 asks, "If anyone has material possessions and sees his brother in need, but has no pity on him, how can the love of God be in him?" Originally made in His image, man is to exemplify God's traits, including compassion. From this it ...

Loving our neighbors means attending to their needs—both physical and spiritual. We love our neighbors when we, like the Samaritan in Jesus' parable, have compassion for them and help meet their needs as we are able. We love our neighbors best when we share God's truth with them. Jesus alone can save (John 14:6; Acts 4:12), and He alone can meet people's every need.

An Introduction to Self-Compassion. Rather than trying to change our deeply rooted values—a challenging task—we can start by lessening the impact they have on us by changing the ways in which we view ourselves. We can begin to do this with self-compassion. Self-compassion means being gentle, kind and understanding with yourself; accepting that you are not perfect; and understanding that ...

Loving animals and caring for pets is kindness in action. Nothing compels you to care about beings of another species, especially in a day and age where the tools of human domination are so powerful. And yet, the very act of loving an animal and respecting the animal for its own value is an expression of deep kindness. As well, being kind to the world that sustains and nurtures us is sensible ...

2. Love is observant. One of the first steps in being a good neighbor and loving others as yourself is noticing others. The Samaritan first saw the hurting man. "But a Samaritan, as he traveled, came where the man was; and when he saw him, he took pity on him. He went to him and bandaged his wounds, pouring on oil and wine," Luke 10:33. Granted, a beaten man on the road seems like a scene ...

Moved by compassion, these devoted women weep over our suffering Savior. But He turns to them and says: "Weep not for Me, but weep for yourselves and your children. Weep for your sins and those of your children; for they are the cause of My suffering." You also must weep over your sins, for there is nothing more pleasing to our Lord and more useful to yourself than the tears you shed out of ...
